New Beginnings School-Based Mental Health Clinics

Strengthening Families

New Beginnings School-Based Mental Health Clinics are a partnership between the Racine Unified School District (RUSD) and Children's Hospital of Wisconsin-Community Services.

Children's Hospital of Wisconsin's counseling programs are based on the idea that a child lives within a family, and a family lives within the community. Children need healthy families and communities to help them be healthy and strong. Our experts work with children, their parents, family members and other people important to them. The goal of counseling is to learn skills that manage stress, work out conflict, and build relationships. We take pride in helping each person find happiness and take steps toward their overall well-being.
